Occupational pension plans: more than 40% of new benefits are paid out early

In 2019, almost 43% of women and 44% of men who received a retirement benefit in form of a lump-sum from an occupational pension plan for the first time received it before the legal age of retirement. Of those who received a pension, 40% of women and 46% of men received it before the legal age of retirement. These are the latest findings of the new pensions statistics from the Federal Statistical Office (FSO).
