Construction expenditure in Switzerland in 2021: provisional results

Construction expenditure remains at the same level in 2021 for the second time in a row

Construction expenditure again remained stable in 2021 compared with the previous year. Investments in civil engineering rose by 1.0% and those in building construction fell by 0.4%. As a result, total investment in construction showed a decline of 0.1%. These are the provisional findings from the Construction Statistics from the Federal Statistical Office (FSO).
