Producer and Import Price Index in September 2023

Producer and Import Price Index fell by 0.1% in September

The Producer and Import Price Index fell in September 2023 by 0.1% compared with the previous month, reaching 108.6 points (December 2020 = 100). Lower prices were seen in particular for petroleum and natural gas. Petroleum products, in contrast, became more expensive. Compared with September 2022, the price level of the whole range of domestic and imported products fell by 1.0%. These are the results from the Federal Statistical Office (FSO).

The producer price index registered falling prices compared with the previous month, particularly for petroleum products.

In particular, lower prices for petroleum and natural gas were responsible for the decline in the import price index compared with August 2023. Cheaper prices were also seen for motor vehicles and motor vehicle parts, wearing apparel, basic metals and semi-finished metal products, leather and related products as well as food products. In contrast, prices rose for petroleum products.

Applicable prices

The prices of domestic products are surveyed for the domestic market at the first marketing stage (i.e. ex works). These ex works prices include neither valued added tax nor consumption tax (e.g. on tobacco, alcohol or petroleum products).

For exports, net sales prices are surveyed FOB (free on board) which, pursuant to definition, do not include valued added tax.

For imports, prices are surveyed at the Swiss border minus valued added, consumption and customs taxes.

In general, the market prices (transaction prices) for products are surveyed at the time of ordering. Price reductions (discounts) are deducted. Prices in foreign currencies are converted at the exchange rate on the first working day of the survey reference period in Swiss francs. The reference period always covers the period from the 1st to 8th of the survey month. This provision allows the results for the reference month to be calculated and published in the course of the subsequent month.

Producer price index for selected services

Over a period of several years, the producer price index has gradually been extended to the service sector. The latest results are available at (in German):
