New online presence

Reliable information for people and AI: Federal Statistical Office launches new online presence

The Federal Statistical Office (FSO) has redesigned its web presence around two complementary platforms. The new Federal Statistical Office website provides information on the FSO's organisation and services, while the «Swiss Statistics» portal makes statistical data more accessible to both people and AI. In this way, the FSO is contributing to a shared foundation of transparent, reliable information for a well-functioning democracy.
